History: The first permanent settler in Selma was Thomas Moore from Tennessee who came down the Alabama River in 1815. In 1817, a land company was organized and the town was named Selma, from Ossian's "The Song of Selma." Selma was incorporated in 1820, and many large cotton plantations were established. The wealthy owners enjoyed horse racing, cock fighting, and thoroughbred raising. In 1848, a group of German artisans and ironworkers settled in Selma, and added iron casting, gunmaking, and other manufacturing plants. Steamboat transportation on the Alabama River reached its peak in the 1850's, and when the Civil War began, Selma was made a supply depot of the Confederate States. Iron ore was shipped to Selma to be molded into weapons. The destruction of the city by Federal troops in 1865 was followed by looting and butchering. After the war, Selma turned to dairy products, in addition to cotton, for its economic base.
