"Some of the industry's players are too close to the firms they assess. Weiss' independent evaluations and bell-shaped results provide us with the opportunity to level the playing field and pick the most financially stable companies for our program."

"TheStreet.com Ratings' Guide is most recommended to special, research, and academic libraries supporting academic departments of banking and those in the profession. It should be considered for universities with Master's programs in banking. It is recommended for larger research collections primarily."
