Introduction

The first edition of Ancestry in America: A Comparative City-by-City Guide to over 200 Ethnic Backgrounds—with Rankings was published in 2003. It was compiled from 2000 Census data, and included all places with populations over 10,000.

This second edition, nearly ten years in the making, is new and improved in many significant ways. Now divided between two volumes, the updated title—Ancestry & Ethnicity in America: A Comparative Guide to over 200 Ethnic Backgrounds—indicates not only a look back but also shows Where We Come From • How We Identify Ourselves • Where We Live Now. It is the most detailed look at the ethnic make-up of America in 2012 on the market today.

Praise for the first edition:

“...finding information in this voluminous source is easy compared with [other sources]...this work is of use to researchers in demography, marketing, sociology and political science.”

—Library Journal

“This compilation will serve a wide range of research requests for population characteristics. Since it reports data on more than 200 different ethnic and racial categories, it offers much more detail than other sources...”

—Booklist

“...compilation and synthesis of disparate data files...along with the comparative rankings, make this a value-added, easy-to-use publication. Recommended for academic, public and special libraries.”

—Reference & User Services Quarterly

“...a unique statistical compilation [whose] real value is in the ethnic breakdowns. Ancestry in America should also prove a statistical bonanza for those doing in-depth research on ethnic populations in the U.S.”

—Against the Grain

NEW CONTENT

- This second edition includes 1,765 more places, now based on population of 7,500 instead of 10,000.
- Ethnicity & Ancestry in America starts off with a New Section of National Profiles, both alphabetical and ranked by group.
- The National Section also includes State-by-State charts and colorful National Maps that show population concentrations of Americans in the top 20 ancestries, those with Hispanic origin, and those in census designated racial groups.
- Each of the specific ranking sections—Ancestry, Hispanic Origin, Race—begins with an Introduction and Cross Reference Guide specific to those ethnic groups.

ARRANGEMENT

The basis for this massive two-volume work is the U.S. Census. Census 2010 collected and arranged data in specific groups, and we have maintained that arrangement throughout this work. The data in all sections of Ancestry & Ethnicity in America are arranged in the following groups:

- Ancestry: 106 groups and subgroups from Afghan to Zimbabwean
- Hispanic Origin: 25 groups and subgroups by country and region
- Race: 5 major groups—African American/Black, American Indian/Alaska Native, Asian, Hawaii Native/Pacific Islander, White—and 82 subgroups by country, tribe and Hispanic identification

Section One: National Population Profile

This section includes two national tables—one alphabetical by group and one ranked by size of group. Both of these tables show the population of each group, plus the percent of the U.S. population.

Following the national tables are state tables that show how many people in each state are in the top 20 ancestry groups, how many are of Hispanic origin, and how many are in each racial group. You'll be able to quickly see, for example, which state has the most Panamanians, or people of African, sub-Saharan descent.

Plus, this section includes 26 colorful maps that show where, in the country, each group is concentrated.

Section Two: State Population Profiles

This section is arranged by state. Each state chapter begins with a state overview: population numbers and percentages of U.S. population for all ancestries, for people of Hispanic origin, and for all racial groups.

The state summary is followed by profiles, in alphabetical order, of places within that state that have populations of 7,500 or more. Each place profile shows the county it resides in, the type of place it is (city, town, village, etc.) and both the number of people in each of 218 groups, as well as that group's percentage of U.S. population.

You can see at a glance, for example, how many people living in Speedway, Indiana consider themselves to be of Ethiopian descent, or what percentage of Hobbs, New Mexico's total population reported Canadian ancestry.

Section Three: Statistical Rankings

This section is comprised of three subsections: Ancestry Group Rankings; Hispanic Origin Rankings; and Racial Group Rankings. Each subsection starts with an Introduction, that gives more detail about the source and presentation of data. Following the Introduction is a Cross Reference Guide for that subsection, that makes easy work of finding those ethnicities that are part of a larger category (i.e. Pakistani, see Race—Asian: Pakistani or Armenian, see Ancestry—Armenian). Then, each group and subgroup is ranked three ways:

- Top 150 places with the largest number of persons reporting that particular group, regardless of total population
- Top 150 places with the highest percentage of persons reporting that particular group, regardless of total population
- Top 150 places, with 7,500 population or more, with the highest percentage of persons reporting that particular group

Master Place Name Index

This Master Index is an alphabetical list of every place included in this second edition of Ancestry & Ethnicity in America. This index includes the place name, type, county, state and the page on which their profile appears.

Ancestry & Ethnicity is also available as an e-book. In addition, e-states are available on CD-ROM, which include profiles of all places in that state regardless of population.

SECTION THREE: Statistical Rankings

Ancestry Group Rankings

Introduction

In this section of this book, each ethnicity contains four tables. The first table is split into two parts. Part one ranks the U.S. and all 50 states plus the District of Columbia by ethnic population. Part two ranks the same areas by percent of the total population. The second table shows the top 150 places sorted by ethnic population (based on all places, regardless of total population), the third table shows the top 150 places sorted by percent of the total population (based on all places, regardless of total population), the fourth table shows the top 150 places sorted by percent of the total population (based on places with total population of 7,500 or more).

Within each table, column one displays the place name, the state, and the county (if a place spans more than one county, the county that holds the majority of the population is shown). Column one in the first table displays the state only. Column two displays the number of people reporting each ancestry (includes people reporting multiple ancestries). Column three is the percent of the total population reporting each ancestry. The 2006-2010 five-year estimated population figure from the American Community Survey is used to calculate the value in the “%” column.
